

Give it up!

Why not give up your daily coffee, buying magazines, going out to dinner, or purchasing clothes, books or games for a month and see how much of a difference you can make!

Sacrificing a small luxury is a powerful way to fundraise—and it's easy! Choose to go without a small luxury for a set time, donate the money you would usually spend on it, and ask your friends and family to help you reach your fundraising goal.

Getting started

- Head to Wesley Community Fundraising and click 'Start Fundraising' to begin.
- Personalise your page with your story, photos and reasons for fundraising.
- Include details of what you are giving up, and your start and finish dates.

Setting goals

- How much would you usually spend on the luxury you're giving up in your set time? Plan to donate this amount.
- A realistic fundraising goal is 2–4 times the amount you will personally donate.

Let everyone know

- Share your page link via email and social media and invite family, friends, colleagues, sports teams, church and/or community groups to support you.

Do all the good you can because every life matters

During your challenge

- Share updates and photos with your supporters via Everyday Hero to show your commitment in action.

When you've completed your challenge

- Thank everyone who helped you prepare or made a donation: this can be done through your Everyday Hero page but it's also good to consider a phone call, email, text message or a handwritten note
- Refresh your Everyday Hero page with updates and photos from your challenge.
